The appeal of the ladies of the Palmetto Club to the citizens for a general and thorough May-day cleaning up of the streets, parks and lawns of the city was very generously responded to all over the city yesterday. There is such a brisk and constant breeze here from the ocean and river that waste paper, dead leaves and other trash is kept scattered and on the move all the time. The remedy for the itinerant trash evil is a trash barrel on the premises of every household and place of business where trash must be put and then removed daily by a city scavenger. The council should authorize the appointment of a scavenger and compel the citizens to keep trash barrels.

A NEW CHAPTER IN THE "MENTAL SCIENCE" CASE

The now celebrated "Mental Science" case, in which Mrs. Helen Wilman-Post, Col. C. C. Post, and C. F. Burgman have been indicted in the United States Court on a charge of fraudulent use of the mails, has assumed a new phase.
Thursday in the district court at Jacksonville, on motion of District Attorney Stripling, Judge Locke declared the bonds of all the defendants null and void on account of the insolvency of J. M. Schu-macher, late president of the National bank that recently failed at Jacksonville, who was the bondsman of the trio.
As a result, all of the defendants were immediately arrested by U. S. Marshal Horr and carried to Jacksonville. After consultation with their attorneys, the defendants decided to make a new move.
Their plan is to have Col. Post and Mr.
Burgman make new bonds, while Mrs.
Post is to refuse to give a bond and then take out a writ of habeas corpus and carry the case before the United States Supreme Court for a hearing.
In the petition for the writ of habeas corpus, Mrs. Post alleges that Judge Locke has no power or authority to restrain her of her liberty, etc. The plea is practically the same as the one set up in the demurrer recently over-ruled by Judge Locke, and is designed to take the case out of the district court.
If the writ is granted and its contentions sustained, it will take the case direct to the Supreme Court, and if not sustained, the writ will at least gain more time for the defendants.

THE REIGN OF THE LIAR

He is injuring the Town and Inciting to Mob Violence.
The spirit of old Ananias is abroad in Daytona, and the healthy and limitless methods by which it is keeping up the old sinner's reputation as a monumental liar is working harm—producing a state of chronic alarm that may ultimately lead to serious consequences.
Lately several depredations have been committed in and around the city by a lawless element that is a part and parcel of almost every community, no matter how efficient its police regulations.
One lady has been outraged by a black brute, who is now in jail. Another has been knocked senseless on the street by a villain as yet unknown, while a third has been wontonly insulted on the main street and in the center of the business section of the town by a burly negro who was allowed to go scot free on the alibi testimony of members of his own family in the face of his positive identification by the lady he had insulted.
These are facts known throughout the city to every intelligent man, woman and child, and in the light of them, it is not a matter of much wonder that there is a feverish state of excitement in the public mind and a sense of dread and fear in the hearts of the women and children.
This condition, however, furnishes no excuse or palliation for the evil influences of the sensation mongers and calamity liars who are exciting and terrifying the community by exaggerating the crimes already committed and inventing others by inexcusable lying. There ought to be some way to get at all such characters and punish them, and we believe it could be done under the statute relating to malicious mischief.
A case in point occurred last Sunday afternoon, and came near precipitating mob violence over on the peninsula.
A young lady, the daughter of E. A. Branch, of Goodall, was walking along the road, in a lonely place, when a negro suddenly appeared on a bicycle, riding toward her.
When within a few yards of her the negro suddenly stopped, dismounted from his wheel and stood in an attitude of waiting. Such unusual conduct very naturally excited alarm in the lady's mind, and she also stopped. The negro called to her to "come on." She turned and fled screaming to the nearest house, while the negro remounted his wheel and disappeared.
Why that negro stopped and waited for the lady, is known only to himself.
His actions were well calculated to alarm her, for it is not a custom here for persons riding bicycles to halt on the highway for people on foot to pass them, on the contrary, it is the pedestrian who has to stand aside for the wheelman.
The news of the occurrence soon spread to this side of the river, and the tide of popular excitement, already stirred up by previous outrages, soon rose to feverish heights. Sheriff Turner, City Marshal Zuber, and a large number of citizens at once hurried across the South bridge to the peninsula on a man hunt.
The sheriff and the marshal did all they could to allay the excitement, but open threats of lynching were heard as the excited crowd spread across the wooded strip of land between the river and the ocean. Every bridge and avenue of escape from the peninsula was watched, but the negro could not be found. One suspect was arrested and taken before the lady, but she said he was the wrong man. He was released at once.
In the meantime, the liar was abroad, adding fuel to the smoldering flame in the popular mind. First came a rumor that two other ladies had been held up and robbed by, presumably, the same negro. This was followed by another rumor that a negro had thrown a lady into the Halifax river.
These rumors were groundless lies, the inventions of some evil, sinister genius, with some diabolical end in view. They soon took the wings of the morning, and spread over the city like a prairie fire, and if the negro who accosted Miss Branch had been arrested that evening and identified by her, all the sheriffs and marshals on the East Coast could not have saved his neck.
The city marshal informs us that the report circulated recently to the effect that Major Pellett was held up and robbed by two negroes was purely a fiction.

UNDER NEW MANAGEMENT

Yesterday Wm. Wicking took charge of the Schantz Electric Light, Lily Water and Ice plants under the terms of a lease for three years executed with the late Adam Schantz shortly before his death.
Mr. Wicking informs the Gazette-News that it is his aim to meet every body half way in the matter of electric lights, and make the rates as reasonable as possible without a loss to himself.
He states further that if found practicable he will abolish the system of charging for the service where it is not used. For instance, under the present system consumers are charged $7.50 for the five months covering the tourist season and $3.00 for the seven months when many of the hotels and residences are closed.
Mr. Wicking proposes to look into this system and see if it cannot be readjusted so as to give a more general satisfaction to all parties concerned.
The virtues and superiority of the Lily Water over all other distilled waters will be judiciously advertised and pushed to the front, and the headquarters of the shipping department removed from Daytona, Ohio, to this city. The process by which this water is purified was invented by the late Adam Schantz.
